ANNUAL REPORT

2006

Press for Peace

Press for Peace (PFP) is a Kashmir based NGO and think tank, founded by Khawaja Zafar Iqbal, eminent journalist and peace activist, in 1999. The PFP strives for the promotion of peace, tolerance, interfaith-harmony and protection of human rights including freedom of press in South Asia. After the catastrophic earthquake in 2005, it has emerged as a dynamic force which has actively involved in the humanitarian work just few hours after the earthquake. The PFP proved to be a motivating force for a huge number of volunteers in all affected parts of Azad Kashmir. Now, PFP has become a well established and well reputed organization. Press for Peace (PFP) has extended its network from Azad Kashmir to Pakistan, Indian Held Kashmir, UAE, Austria and Canada. It has also honoured and accepted worldwide, particularly for its efforts for the promotion of culture of mutual understanding and harmony in the region.

Vision

Press for Peace (PFP) envisions a world of lasting peace and harmony where happiness is a natural right and misery a common adversary of every individual.

Objectives

- The establishment of permanent peace in the region and protection of human rights with special emphasis on peaceful settlement of Kashmir issue through media efforts.
- The achievement of inter-faith and inter-religion harmony between the people of different creeds, cults and cultures.
- The struggle for the protection of women's and children's right through concentrated media efforts.
- The protection of the rights of minorities and work for racial indiscrimination.
- The arrangements for the professional capacity building by providing training to media persons.
- The achievement of Press Freedom and the end of journalistic forced labour.
- The strengthening of democracy and democratic norms in government affairs by providing counseling and training.
- The attainment of pollution free and secure environment.
- The supremacy of wisdom and clear thought over sentimentalism and imprudence.
- The efforts for poverty alleviation and provision of opportunities for the economic boost in the underprivileged and underdeveloped communities.
- The propagation of sublime character and the safeguard of moral values.

Network

Press for Peace has expanded its network from Azad Kashmir to Pakistan, Indian Occupied Kashmir, United Arab Emirates, England, Austria and Canada. It has also been honored and accepted worldwide. It has partnership with NGOs and other civil society entities within country and abroad.

A Big Challenge

On 08 October 2005, at about 0852 hours, every individual and each entity was damaged by a catastrophic earthquake in the most parts of Azad Kashmir and few areas of NWFP in Pakistan. For a few moments, the life was still. A few villages in the mountainous region in upper Azad Kashmir disappeared within seconds. The life became a dream for those who survived after the calamity. It was a big challenge for humanity.

The devastation was beyond imagination. The earthquake ruined approximately 28,000 Square Kilo meters area in Pakistan and Azad Kashmir. The major destruction was in densely populated areas where the rate of death and destruction was much higher. The most affected city in Azad Kashmir was Muzaffarabad, the capital of the state and its adjacent villages. This region presented the scenes of total destruction and devastation even after passing weeks. At this tragedy, the Prime Minister of the state, with tears in his eyes, deplored, "I am the Prime Minister of the graveyard.

Generosity Showered

The people of the affected area can not forget all those who showered upon them their generosity and worked for their rescue and survival. When all communication links were extinct and no clue of life was there in the affected areas, a few individuals volunteered themselves for the assistance of the dying humanity. They were not worried about themselves and their families. They just thought of those who were dying in their immediate vicinity. The workers and volunteers proved with their endeavors that humanitarian work does not need many resources. It is just done by compassionate and tender hearts. They learnt much in this regard. Today, when we look back, we do not believe that we have done such a huge work. But, when one is honest to his work and one has no hidden motives, the humanitarian work becomes worship and one feels that his responsibilities have increased. This becomes a guiding source and inspiration.

The Survival and Rescue

Within a few hours after the earthquake, workers of the PFP started humanitarian work at individual level. Initially they focused on rescue, first aid, searching strangled individuals under the debris and providing shelter, recovery of wounded persons and dead bodies. When everyone was in the condition of shock, PFP started working upon extreme emergency basis. With a small setup and no assets, its volunteers were determined to put the best of the efforts. To set an example, the Chief Coordinator PFP handed over all his belongings to the affected people who were in the dire need of relief goods.

During the recurring jolts, when everyone was worried about his own and his relatives' safety, Khawaja Zafar Iqbal, the founder chief coordinator of PFP went after the screams of severely wounded school children and recovered a large number of them to the first aid units. He was mad to pursue the cries of strangled and dying children. To follow his example, each member of the Press for Peace devoted himself for emergency relief work.

Media Silence

For first two days journalists and reporters in Azad Kashmir engaged themselves to the much needed rescue work. During that period, what was reported on national and international media, it was based on rumors and personal accounts of some of the victims in lesser-affected areas. In fact, the actual scene of destruction was not being reported in a professional manner. At this critical time, PFP felt its responsibilities. It observed that the best possible humanitarian work at the time was to inform the world about devastation of the earthquake. The chief coordinator called an emergency meeting of the executive council. Tariq Naqash, , Mohammad Fareed-ul-hadam, Raja Waseem Khan (the scriptwriter of this report), Asif Raza Mir, Iftikhar Rana, Aftab Alam, Tariq Durrani, Najam-ul-Islam Assri, Aurangzeb Saifullah, Rafiq Mughal, Aslam Mir, Tanvir Tanoli, Daniyal Shehab and others attended the meeting. Though, every member of PFP was shattered at the occasion, they managed to gather at the debris of a building with their wounded hearts and souls. A few have wounds on their bodies too. Their houses were destroyed and family members killed.

Tears! Tears! Every where Tears.

The Human Resolve

After the earthquake, everyone present at the first emergency meeting of Press for Peace decided to resume professional responsibilities with a renewed pledge to serve the ailing humanity and put the best of their efforts to save the dying human beings. It was decided to immediately contact, by any means, with electronic and print media in major cities of Pakistan. The members started contacting the media persons and media houses via a few private telephone lines still lying intact.

On Journalistic Front

Press for Peace observed at the occasion that unfortunately, the professional journalistic sources were totally damaged by the earthquake. The chief co-ordinator managed to meet the emergency need of cameras, films and telephone sets by self-help basis through personal contacts. It was found that most of the communication links with external world were non-existent and unavailable. PFP realized that first two days media reports focused only the Margalla towers in Islamabad. It meant the world was unaware of the much higher destruction in the upper mountainous regions of Northern Pakistan.

The members of PFP made rigorous efforts to send photographs and films of the havoc via army helicopters. Due to non-availability of electricity, the fax service, a major tool of the reporting team was non-existent. The journalists of PFP used private contacts to convey the details of tragic account the death and destruction to the media houses. Within a few days, PFP was the most active media entity in Muzaffarabad to guide national and international media. Later on, many established and worldly recognized media organizations acknowledged the services of PFP.

During the earthquake, Amir-u-din Mughal Coordinator PFP who is also working for international news agency Reuters as a photojournalist got serious injuries. But he resumed his professional activities within a few days. His images of the destruction in affected areas drew international attention and subsequently, a multitude of national and international donor agencies started arriving there. When these NGOs, government representatives and individual philanthropists reached in Muzaffarabad, they wanted to gain information and access to the worst hit areas. The members of Press for Peace voluntarily offered their services to assist those individuals and organizations.

Establishment of the Press for Peace Volunteer Force (PFPVF)

On 11 October 2005, an extra-ordinary meeting of the executive council of PFP held in Muzaffarabad. The council realized that due to non-availability of coordinated media efforts, most of the NGOs and humanitarian organizations were facing hurdles to reach to the affected areas. Therefore, in order to guide and assist a large number of the members of incoming welfare bodies, the council decided to establish PFP Volunteer Force. Headed by a student, Zulfiqar Beg, the volunteers did a marvellous job. PFP acknowledges and appreciates the services of volunteers Javed Hashmi, Zaheer Jagwal, Tahir Farooqi, Mehmood Gillani, Babar Awan, Basharat, Malik Zulfiqar, Danial Shahab, Wafaq Anjum, Hafiz Saeed-ur-Rehman, Fazil Mughal, Ejaz Kazmi, Zubair-u-din Arifi, Saeed-ur-Rehman Sajjad, Mahraj Alam, Ejaz Alam, Miss Iram, Miss Shugfta, Tassadaq, Waqar Hashmi, Zarrar Baloch and many others from the university, schools and colleges.

The PFPVF's efforts were a guiding source and inspiration for those who remained in the state of shock and helplessness for the first few days. Resultantly, a large number of people from every walk of life volunteered themselves for relief work. Press for Peace assigned them tasks according to their skills and capabilities. In order to guide and assist foreign NGOs, journalists and survey teams of university and college students with good command over English were detailed as interpreters.

In fact, when aid workers from different parts of the world reached Muzaffarabad, they found it difficult to ascertain the scale of relief in the remote areas of upper villages of Muzaffarabad and Neelum Valley. At this occasion PFP provided them much needed guidance and awareness about these areas. Being impressed by the selfless contribution of the volunteer force, more and more people contacted to participate in humanitarian work. It was encouraging. The candle lights the candle. Within a few days, the number of volunteers raised to 250 and later on more than 500.

Humanity, the Priority

When everyone was running after the much needed relief goods for the sake of life of his kith and kin, the members of PFP devoted themselves to assist those unfortunate families where no male members were left behind. The members of PFP would collect cooked food from charities and distributed it among those who were in dire need of it.

Distribution of Relief Goods

Press for Peace with the assistance of other NGOs and donor agencies distributed 1000 plastic sheets, 500 burners, 852 quilts, 250 lamps, 500 sacks coal, 460 blankets (Korean), 950 packets of dates (1 kg each), 460 bundles of sweaters, 1150 shawls, 560 blankets (ordinary) in the affected families. More over, 22 trucks load of food items, clothes, jackets, shoes and other items of daily use were also distributed. PFP took care of the ego of the affected people during relief work and humanitarian activities. During the dark hours, volunteers and central office holders of PFP carried the relief goods on their shoulders and distributed in the widows, hawkers, journalists and members of district administration. Before earthquake, they all were well to do citizens, but now they have nothing except clothes on their bodies. Each member of PFP voluntarily distributed the relief goods without any hidden motive of publicity or fame. PFP is an organization of selfless devotees and zealous enthusiasts who share the common goal of reducing human miseries.

Media Relief Center

The volunteers of PFPVF also provided meals to media persons, press clubs and bureau offices of different news agencies where everyone, without caring about his own needs, was engaged in preparing and sending reports day and night. This practice continued till the reopening of the restaurants and hotels in the city.

Establishment of Media City

Press for Peace established a media city in Chehla Bandi on emergency basis to facilitate media persons. Hotels and restaurants were not available due to the massive destruction. This facility remained functional for 7 months and offered professional facilities to media persons. Suitable arrangements of daily meals and lodging were made the PFP Media City.

Relief Work in District Bagh

In District Bagh, PFP team comprising of Yousaf Kashmiri, Dr. Hafeez, Tahir Shah, Imran Gillani, Shoukat Taimoor, Miss Obaida, Miss Salma and others started humanitarian work on self help basis. PFP distributed tents, blankets, and gas cylinders, lamps and ration for the journalists and hawkers of Bagh. The organization also established a free medical camp in Bagh.

Relief Work in Rawalakot

In district Rawalakot the PFP team in the supervision of divisional coordinator, Sardar Abid Siddique started its rescue and relief work soon after the disaster. The Rawalakot PFP unit guided the NGOs and relief workers through its devoted volunteers to access the most affected areas such as Singola, Ali Sojal, Hussain kot, Datote, Hornamera. The rehabilitation of education sector was main focus of PFP team .therefoe, books; stationary and other educational material was distributed in affected children while stipends were arranged for some university students. In Rawalakot, members and volunteers of PFP including Rashid Nazir, Abdur Razzaq, M.Sohail, Abdur Rehman, also facilitated international media to cover the sufferings of the earthquake survivors. Moreover, divisional coordinator Sardar Abid Siddique represented the district Rawalakot on different national forums and meetings in Lahore, Karachi and Islamabad where the problems of affectees were discussed and highlighted.

Data Collection and Survey

Press for Peace established a separate unit to collect data about orphans, widows and needy people in the affected areas. The unit did a splendid job and visited tent villages in remote areas to get the required information. Many International NGOs and relief organizations depended on the lists prepared by PFP to provide much-needed help the affected families.

Education

The Education sector in Azad Kashmir was the most affected government department .The number of destroyed school/college buildings was alarming. In fact, the buildings made under government contracts proved more devastating than the earthquake itself. In many cases, the whole structure was collapsed within seconds. Due to poor standards of constructions, a whole generation went under debris. All those students who survived were traumatized and refused to resume their educational activities in the destroyed school buildings. This was a natural outcome of the earthquake.

Establishment of the 1st PFP tent school

The executive council of PFP decided to establish tent schools on emergency basis. PFP members encouraged parents to send their children to schools in order to resume normal education activities. Initially, sheltered accommodation being the major concern of the donor agencies the tents were not available for schooling purpose.

PFP started primary classes in the courtyard of the ruined building of daily Khabrain. The first PFP tent school; established upon the rubble and under the sky, was a ray of hope for many who had lost everything in the earthquake. The office bearers of PFP volunteered themselves to teach the students and went door to door to motivate the parents. Later on highly educated members of the PFPVF were appointed as teachers. Mrs. Zahida Zahir Jagwal volunteered herself to look after the matters of this school. PFP highly appreciates the services of volunteers Waseem Khan Jadoon, Miss Farzana, Khalique-ur-Rehman, Sudhir Ahmad, Israr-ur-Haq Gillani and many others. They all devoted themselves for the resumption of normal educational activities in the quake-hit areas.

More Tent Schools in Affected area

Due to growing interest of the people PFP decided to establish more tent schools in the remote villages of Muzaffarabad region. Miss Sumera in Lower Platte, Miss Nighat in Chehla Bandi, Miss Amna in Ambore, Miss Nishat Mughal in Lwasi, Asif Mir in Panjgran, Jalal-ud-din in Kundal Shahi were appointed as the resource persons and in charge of the PFP tent schools. An eminent educationist and the Chairperson of PFP Women Wing, Madam Tanvir Latif supervised these schools. We applaud the contribution of teachers and volunteers who offered their services to bring success to this project. 32 teachers of Press for Peace Educational Unit taught one thousand school children for more than six months without getting and stipend or salary. The educational setup in quake hit areas was totally collapsed. The PFP educational unit started especially prepared testing service to assess the progress made by the students after earthquake. All those students who appeared for tests were declared successful. PFP also managed to acquire regular stipends for needy students. In order to impart moral and religious education, a religious school was established near Chehla Bandi in Muzaffarabad. With the generous cooperation of international organization Caritas, Czech Republic, two earthquake resistant buildings were completed in Chehla Bandi and Kundal Shahi. The volunteers of CARITAS from Czech Republic also participated in the construction work despite harsh and unfavourable weather. With the support of CARITAS these 2 model schools are being furnished with latest educational equipments.

Free Coaching Centers

In order to save the precious academic year of the school children and to get them complete their syllabus, PFP established 03 free coaching centers. The students attended those centers for two months.

Sheltered Accommodation Program

Press for Peace started shelter program at the remote village of Punjgran, where the life had become impossible in tents due to heavy snowfall. The volunteers of PFP headed by Asif Raza Mir carried out an arduous task of surveying the area and prepared a list of those who were in urgent need of shelter. Later on the information gathered was conveyed to a sister NGO of Lahore with a request to save the survivors of earthquake from dying of cold. Shirkat Gah responded wholeheartedly to the request of the PFP. The NGO provided sheets and other building material to accommodate 800 families of villages Devalian, Chamba, Tatrial and Punjgran. Ahmad Raza Khan and Sajjad Ahmad, of Shirkat Gaah, Asif Raza Mir, Ali Gohar, Asad Ali, Arshad and many other volunteers from PFP worked day and night to complete this program. The people in the area were already underprivileged and after earthquake were badly in need of the relief goods. PFP also distributed cooking utensils, ration, burners, warm clothing and shoes. This project was funded by The World American Service and their Representative Mr. Mathew D. Emry visited the field area and expressed satisfaction on the performance of stakeholders of the project.

Minorities and PFP

The October 08 earthquake damaged everyone. The people of every community faced death and destruction of property. It is painful to say that when prominent humanitarian bodies and individuals started relief work, the non-Muslim community of the affected area was ignored and left alone. It is an honour for PFP that after earthquake first of all the chief coordinator PFP started efforts for minorities. He also persuaded and insisted other NGOs and humanitarian organizations for the much needed relief activities in the minority community. Through coordinated efforts, the PFP succeeded in getting especial quota of relief goods from different aid distributing agencies for Christian community. Here again, the policy of respect to ego was strictly followed by the PFP in this community.

Installation of Peace Pole in Muzaffarabad

The establishment of peace in the region and interfaith harmony are the shared objective of PFP with many national and international organizations. URI is an international NGO working for interfaith harmony. PFP installed a peace symbol at Domel in Muzaffarabad with the assistance of URI. URI's Regional Chief Coordinator for South Asia Father James Chanbien and heads of all CCs of URI in Pakistan were present at the occasion. Father James Chanbien and office bearers of PFP installed the peace pole.

Efforts for Inter Faith Harmony

In order to promote inter faith harmony between Islam and Christianity, the central office bearers of PFP celebrated Eid festivals with the people of Christian community in tent villages. It also invited the Christian community in Pakistan to celebrate Christmas with earthquake affected families in Azad Kashmir. Mr. Rashid Masih of Eternal Family and Human Resource Centre along with his team visited Muzaffarabad. The PFP arranged especial functions at this occasion. PFP participated in humanitarian work without racial discrimination. To implement its policy of all-inclusive humanitarian approach, the minorities too have their representation in PFP.

Tableaus and Comedy Shows for affected children

The office bearers and members of the PFP celebrated their both Eids with affected families. At the occasion of Eid-ul-Az'a, the PFP organized tableaus and comedy shows for affected children. The purpose was to provide them an opportunity to come out of trauma. Khawaja Zafar Iqbal, Fareed-ul-Hadam and Raja Wasim Khan actively participated in these programs. These activities were organized in the PFP tent schools.

Services for Widows and Bereaved Families

Press for Peace established a vocational training centre. The idea was to provide a place of work for widows and needy women who had lost their male family members in the earthquake. The center runs under supervision of Miss Shagufta Ilyas and is patronized by Madam Tanvir Latif. The women are taught here the courses of embroidery, needle work, cutting and sewing, etc. The project owes much to the volunteer women. The volunteers played an important role for uplift and betterment of the women of affected areas.

Cultural Jewellery Project

Press for Peace organized an exhibition of the locally made jewellery items prepared by the women of Neelum Valley. A large number of women from different countries and cultures visited the exhibition and praised the talent of the local women. The affected women earned a handsome amount by selling their products. The exhibition highlighted the importance of local culture and proved an opportunity for poor women to enhance their income. PFP has decided to introduce local made jewellery at international level. A permanent cultural centre will be established here to provide jobs to the local women at their doorsteps.

Environmental Issues

The earthquake not only damaged the human life and infrastructure, but also affected the natural environment. Multi storied buildings, houses and other infrastructure was converted into debris within seconds. The stinking bodies of men and animals, heaps of garbage in the streets and absence of sanitary arrangements posed an immediate danger for human survival. In the upper parts of the region; the land was severely damaged by the recurring jolts.

Environmental Awareness Week

With the cooperation of Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Azad Kashmir, Press for Peace organized an "environmental awareness week". This campaign was supervised by eminent environmentalist and co coordinator environment wing Sahibzada Aftab Alam. The PFP distributed an informative brochure in the students of different schools and colleges of the rural and urban areas. During This campaign, the importance of environmental Protection and safeguard of natural environment was highlighted through distinctive programs and meetings in rural and urban centres, educational institutes, government offices and municipalities in districts Muzaffarabad, Bagh, Rawalakot and Neelum/Jhelum valley. The speech contests were organized by the PFP to promote environmental cognizance among the students of different schools/colleges and other educational instates in Gari Duppatta, Muzaffarabad, Hatian Bala and Neelum Valley. In Kundal Shahi and Kel, environmental issues were highlighted by the efforts of this organization. Informative pamphlets were distributed to create awareness and adopt concrete step about hygienic conditions and environmental issues in the tent villages of Muzaffarabad and adjoining areas. The sincere and untiring efforts of Khurshd Ahmad from WWF, Khalid Javed, Mumtaz Mughal from Islamic Relief made the campaign successful.

Disaster Reporting Training Workshops

PFP organized training workshop with the collaboration of UK based charity, Islamic Relief for journalists and community workers on 'Post disaster environmental journalism' in Muzaffarabad and Rawalakot. The objective of the workshops was to sensitize the media persons and social workers about the environmental and hygienic issues created by earthquake. These workshops were also participated by some journalists from remote areas of Neelum, Bagh Aabbaspur and Palendri. A renown journalist from Austeria Miss Eva Maria Teja was specially invited to attend the events as guest speaker.

Forests Preservation Campaign

Press for Peace initiated a campaign to highlight the importance of forests and their protection. The campaign was highly appreciated by other NGOs and subsequently, UNDP and Bulandi Welfare Organization started a permanent cooking and heating project to curtail the use of forest wood as a fuel, and provided an alternate source of energy to the upper rural areas in Neelum Valley.

LPG Project, Neelum Valley

In this area, the PFP distributed 400 Liquid Petroleum Gas (LPG) cylinders and burners with the cooperation and assistance of UNDP and Bulandi Welfare Organization. The PFP took a pledge from local populace that use of firewood would be minimized and a tree plantation campaign was organized to protect the forests. The cost of this project was more than two million rupees. The Project Incharge was Hafiz Nasir-u-din Mughal, co-ordinator Neelum. He completed this task in befitting manner. The organization appreciates his contribution in this regard.
